Intimate Little Tales

SOME EXPERIENCES OF HUMAN INTEREST UNDER-GONE IN EVERY-DAY LIFE BY EVERY-DAY PEOPLE

A LITTLE GIRL WHO DID NOT WISH FOR ANOTHER DADDY—A WEAK MOTHER—A CRIMINAL HUSBAND—THE AFTERMATH

Until her seventh year little Rachel had known nothing but comfort and happiness. She had two little sisters younger than she, and they all lived in a beautiful house on the edge of a pretty little town in Montana. Her father owned a lumber mill and in the summer they all went to live out at the mill. Mother bought overalls for them and they took their toys and "ran wild" almost in the beautiful hills, and the fresh breezes brought real roses to their cheeks and were developing them into beautiful mountain children.

Then a terrible thing happened. One day Rachel sat in front of the house playing with her doll, the other children were not far away when her father, with an expression which she had never seen on his face before, strode up.

"Where's your mother?" he asked gruffly.

"Oh, she's on the river in the canoe with Jim Moore," replied the child innocently, pointing to the river which wound its course in and out, the shimmering water shone like silver in the sun against the heavy green of the trees and the grass on the banks, and in the distance could be seen a canoe in which were two figures.

Jack Mitchell turned with a curse on his lips into the house and came out again with a field glass in his hand into which he looked long and intently at the pair on pleasure bent. With white face and set teeth he walked down to the river bank, and Rachel watched him breathlessly as he stood there so still, so angry, just waiting.

Poor little Rachel! No more days of happy childhood were hers. From that hour sorrow and despair seemed to have entered what was hitherto a fairly peaceful home, and the father who had loved her so seemed changed even towards her, although she knew by the way he looked at her sometimes that he still loved her. Then one day her mother with trembling fingers dressed them and took them away with her.

"I want to say 'good-bye' to daddy," wept Rachel, "I love my daddy."

"No, we are not going to say 'good-bye,'" said the mother, "because I don't care anything about us. I am going to find another daddy for you."

"If it's Jim Moore I don't want him for a daddy," sobbed the child and the two younger ones looked on tearfully also.

"You must do what mother thinks best," replied she.

Jim Moore was a workman at the lumber mill owned by Jack Mitchell, and in some insidious way had won the affection of the mill owner's wife, and their guilty affection resulted in a divorce. The poor, misguided woman was more weak than erring and she fancied that she loved the stalwart timberman as she had never loved the husband who really did care for her. And so one cold winter's night she and her three children took up their abode in Jim Moore's cabin, in the mountains and poor little Rachel's heart was heavy. Stella Mitchell had been a very beautiful girl and was still a beautiful woman of a soft and placid type, but deprivation and the anxiety of not having enough for her children, and she became faded and drab and worn.

The years passed, three children were born of the new union and Rachel grew into a fine, sturdy girl, but there was a flash in her eye and a set of her head which boded ill for her enemies, and in her heart she nursed a hatred of her stepfather. It had been born one day when she saw him look at her mother and saw her mother respond to the look, when she in her childish mind instinctively knew that he was doing her father some wrong, and it had grown and grown as she had seen the poverty and hard life which her mother endured, and she had a consuming longing to get away from him, away, away anywhere, just so that she should not see his face because she hated to look at it.

She was just fifteen and very well grown when Vernon Williams came to the little village where the schoolhouse was. She was ignorant of love and unhappy at home and when he began to make love to her, during those beautiful summer days she responded and thought love the most beautiful thing in the world. They were married, Vernon was a miner and he took her to a large mining centre. They had a tiny little house and Rachel was like a child with a doll's house. She fused and played with her toy all day; cooked and sewed and baked and cleaned and was as happy as a lark, when one day, like a bolt out of a clear sky, her husband was arrested for conspiracy in a shooting affray which had occurred in connection with a burglary. He was given eight years in jail. His relatives lived on a homestead in Canada, and broken in spirit, poor Rachel was taken to them. A few months after that her baby was born, but the little life only fluttered a few hours and then died.

Her relatives on the homestead soon began to show very plainly that they thought she should go out and make her own way, so Rachel, whose spirit was really a proud one, went to the nearest city and obtained a situation.

Week by week the letters came from the prison house. Week by week letters came from her mother, telling of her sordid life, of all the work she had to do, of her stepfather's illness, of how little money there was with which to do anything.

One day Rachel said to her mistress, who had an understanding heart, "I cannot stand this cold, hard climate any longer. I want to go away where none of them will ever find me. I should never have married, yet I think I could do at the time. I do not love my husband now, I feel as though I hated him. I think I shall go home and see mother once more and then I shall go to the sunny south. It was from the south my grandfather and grandmother brought my mother in a caravan when she was a tiny girl. Brought her to—what?" She laughed a strange, sardonic laugh, and a young girl of seventeen years, and her mistress shuddered although she tried to inspire her with fresh hope and confidence.

In some way Rachel managed to get down to California and for a time seemed happy. Her spirits grew brighter and she expanded in the glow of the warm sunshine which her exotic nature demanded. A promising young man fell in love with her, and then Rachel became gloomy as before, until one sunny morning in June, her landlady found her stretched on her bed, her face set in peaceful repose. She had taken an overdose of some toothache medicine, whether accidentally or deliberately it was never ascertained, but there was found in her possession a letter from her husband which said, "You need not talk of divorce. If I find that you try to skip me, remember I shall find you wherever you may be. You belong to me now. If I find, when I come out that I have lost you, I shall be a desperate man, so beware."

And in a little cabin in the mountains of Montana a sad-faced woman got her weary round of drudgery. It said that her husband had turned his eyes in another direction, but she is too broken spirited to care, and before her she sees continually the face of her dead daughter who beseeched her so many years ago to let her say 'good-bye' to her daddy because she loved him and did not want another daddy.

The dead are all of Twin Bridges: "Orin Stone, Edward Glass, Oscar Berger and Mike Miller."

Joseph Foley May Be Senator

In the northern part of the province, interest is rife as to the probable successor to Senator Prince of Battleford, who died a few days ago. It is understood that the only name yet mentioned in connection with the vacancy is that of Ex-Mayor Joseph Foley, of North Battleford, who has been identified with public life in the north for a number of years.

As Senator Prince was the only Roman Catholic in the province in the Senate at Ottawa, it is probable than an appointee of that persuasion will be named to take his place, as there are between 200,000 and 300,000 adherents of that religion in the province. Ex-Mayor Foley, it is pointed out would fill that condition.

Burn Corn Instead of Coal

Hundreds of thousands of bushels of corn may be burned as fuel by the farmers in Northern Nebraska this winter, according to reports brought from the north line counties. Coal is dear and there is a bounteous but low priced crop of corn. The corn unshelled brings three-quarters of a cent or $15.00 a ton. The cheapest soft coal is $15.00 and there are transportation charges above that. A wagon ton thirty inches high is required to hold a ton of unshelled corn, and that amount lasts longer than a ton of coal.

Sizes Quantity of Canadian Whiskey Nineteen cases of Canadian whiskey, valued at $250 per case has been seized in Kansas city by a federal officer in a carload of furniture being shipped from Canada to Sweet Springs, Texas. Work To Be Rushed on The Experimental Farm

Premier Meighen, during the half-hour which he spent at Swift Current on his way to the coast, made the statement that the work of developing the new experimental farm there would be pushed ahead with all possible speed, so that it might become of real service to the farmers of this section of the province.

Both Mr. Meighen and Hon. J. A. Calder were of opinion that the new federal farm, together with the results forthcoming from the Better Farming Conference held in this city during the summer would prove of valuable assistance in overcoming many of the difficulties which have been experienced among the agriculturists of southwest Saskatchewan.

Battleford Man Dies

Henry James Ghent, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter J. Ghent of Ghent's Crossing, Beach Road, died at the city hospital in Hamilton, Ontario, aged thirty-three years. His wife died at Battleford, about eighteen months ago, leaving five young children. A sad fact in connection with Mr. Ghent's death was that only two weeks previously he sold his farm near Battleford and came to Hamilton to be with this young children. He was seriously ill one day only.

Landru Given Four Year Sentence

Henri Landru has recently been convicted in Paris on the charge of swindling and being a habitual criminal, and sentenced to four years' imprisonment and subsequent deportation. The prosecutor announced that Landru might not be tried on the murder charge growing out of the disappearance of eleven women, to whom he was said to have promised marriage. This is to be decided shortly. Since his arrest Landru has been alluded to as a blue beard. He was arraigned a week ago on the swindling charge which grew out of his venture in the automobile and garage business in 1913.

The wedding of Caroline L. Matthews recently to Ramond Van Hecke of Lethbridge, Alta., closes a unique experience in the history of family marriages. This makes the fourth member of the family who has married the fourth member of another. Three of the Matthews brothers married the three sisters of the Van Hecke family, and the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Matthews was the only son of Mr. and Mrs. Van Hecke.

Seize Liquor

Two automobiles belonging to Ogdenburg, N.Y., people at McCarthy's Wharf, east of Brockville, were seized by Customs and Police officers as the men were unloading a cargo of whiskey, champagne and alcohol into row boats destined for the American side. Anti-Smoking Agitators Denounced Denouncing the question of the agitation of those people who would stop smoking, Mayor Becker of Hamilton, Ontario, said: "I believe that these people are affected with a form of hydrophobia. They are nearly as bad as the people who wanted to cut off cigarettes from the soldiers. I believe that there is temperance in all things, even reform. The word of the woman who started this, that she is 'doing the Almighty's work' is blasphemy."

Sugar Interests to Merge

The Last Day of Their Summer

Summer's on the wane, time for all wandering lovers to get back to work. You know how it is after the sea comes dashing against the rocks and the balsams and pines add to the rest of the air after you and she have sat for hours with only a log collie for company watching the ships that pass like ghosts, and wishing that you both might be on board of one of them off to the land of perpetual happiness. Of course you know you have to go back to the city and sit in an office and work over figures or something unpoetic and keep dreaming of HER as she sat there with you, and you steal a glance at her eyes straining toward the sea and ask yourself if it's fair. The only answer you get is a shrilly squeak from a gull who drifts past as though parting lovers were nothing worth bothering about. And what she thinks about it you know from the pressure of her little hand as it lies in yours.

But it's the way of the world that all things should come to an end and especially the things we want to last the longest and—but then think how old we'd be if we had the power of prolonging some of our very happiest Summer vacations—perhaps it would cease to be happy and then with the perversity of man we'd be looking about for some way to shorten it.

There's a lot to be said for the methods of things as they are even if they do involve that last sad day of the Summer together—don't you think so?

END OF JANUARY BEFORE DRY LAW IS IN OPERATION

There is now every likelihood that Nova Scotia, Saskatchewan, Alberta, and Manitoba will become dry toward the end of January. Since the plebiscites on importation were taken, much study has been given to a curious local situation, which has arisen. The point was whether government vendors could be properly classed as holding licenses, if so action to prohibit importation could be taken under one clause of the Canada Temperance Act. If not, under another clause and between the two, there is a difference of at least 30 days in the period within which liquor may still be imported for personal use.

A GOOD MOVE

A movement that is altogether commendable has been started by teachers in the schools of Cardston, Alberta. The name given it is The Better English Club, and the five hundred or more children of the schools have been signed up as members along with teachers and many adult members of the community.

Members pledge themselves to love the Dominion of Canada, the Union Jack and the English language. In addition they promise:

1. That I will not denigrate the English language by leaving off the last syllables of words.
 2. That I will say a good Canadian "yes" and "no," instead of an Indian growl, "umhuh" and "uhuh" or a foreign "ya" or "yer" and "nope."

3. That I will improve Canadian speech by enunciating distinctly, speaking pleasantly and sincerely.
 4. That I will try to make my country's language beautiful for the many foreign boys and girls who come here to live.

5. That I will learn to articulate correctly one word a day for one year.
 The Star knows of no more desirable effort in this country where we have so large a foreign population and where the natural tendency even among those of us who are native born is to under the King's English. It is lamentable true that even in our schools attention is paid to regularly correct enunciation and pronunciation, while with very many of us proper articulation in speech has become a lost art. If this, which is this order will improve us in these respects, they will be worth all the time and attention that can be given to them.

Under the auspices of the U. E. A. a meeting is being called for December 14th at 2 o'clock for the discussion of the co-operative cream-shipping question. Everybody is a leaf to attend.

THE PURPOSE OF

ILLUSTRATION STATIONS.

In an article dealing with the above, Mr. R. L. Tupper, Supervisor, says this project is fourfold in nature. First, an object lesson of good cultural practice to the farmers of the district where the station is located. The station, as it is placed near the village, on a main road, is easy of access and, as a trail of necessity converges on the business centre. Each field being designated by a descriptive sign as to rotation followed, its duration, sequence, and the present crop in field being made, renders the work intelligible, interesting and of value to even the casual passerby. For each station, rotations suited to local conditions are laid down, these systems become familiar, the work well performed and recorded by the operator is observed and copied after by the working farmer, and when adopted in whole or in part makes for a safe and more profitable method of farming.

Second, to illustrate the advantage of using selected seed. In commencing work on each station or when supplying further seed, care is taken to provide good seed of a proved variety that is adapted to the particular district. When improved seed is sown on the station fields, a new variety or class of crop used, for instance, a perennial grass crop for hay in Western Canada, throughout the season the progress is noted and the results can make his own conclusion from personal observation. The Illustration Station thus uses effectively the power of silent suggestion.

Third, to distribute by sales of the operator improved seed grain in the community. From the resulting crops of the selected seed used on the station, neighbors purchase of the surplus seed for use on their own farms. The operator in order to effect a wider distribution limits the number of bushels available to each individual purchaser. This initial seed permitted by home selection, in following years makes for considerable crop improvement throughout the district.

Fourth, the spread of knowledge to the individual farmer by personal conversation with the station inspector or from farm operator in discussion of problems with his neighbors. The chief means of this interchange of ideas, however, is at assemblies or stated meetings in the field when knowledge of results and recent findings, as well as a much needed re-statement of old principles is placed within easy reach of all in the vicinity. These meetings on the fields as harvest approaches are a very appropriate means of making real use of the Illustration Station in reviewing the work and together discussing any relative question which may arise. In assembling in this way the farmers distinctly benefit by the association with each other and the light which each may let in on their common problems.

The later compiled results of the season's work in cost of production, the value of crops, and the averages over the years, form valuable data, and joined with the weather observations, notably the rain gauge records for the Western Provinces, makes available definite information which is important in determining the values of the various districts for agricultural purposes.

EXPERIMENTAL

FARMS REPORT

Mr E. S. Archibald, the director of dominion experimental farms, says that taking Canada as a whole, the season just closing has been a favorable one and crops varying from fair to excellent have been harvested.

In no crop has there been a wide-spread failure. In the West hail damage has been slight, and the late opening of spring work was made up for by the almost total absence of frosts before harvest.

In the East, grain yields have been good. Hay is a rather light crop. Fruits have yielded excellently as to quantity and quality.

In nearly all sections of the Dominion the excellent fall condition of the pastures has carried stock into the winter in fine condition, thus effecting a marked saving in purchase feeds.

During the summer, the writer visited many sections of both Eastern and Western Canada, the latter including a trip into the Grande Prairie and Peace River districts. He was deeply impressed with the agricultural possibilities of these newer districts, and by the results already obtained, for the guidance of the new settlers, by our Experimental Stations there.

Arrangements have just been completed for establishing a new Station at Swift Current, Sask., where dry farming will be studied in conjunction with live work on the range.

In the East, Illustration Station work has been commenced in the Maritime Provinces.

We trust that the work of the Experimental Farms Branch, both in it already established and its new phases, may continue to prove of value to Canadian farmers.

WEATHER PLAYS HAVOC

WITH PHONE LINES

By way of marking the trouble which the continued damp weather causes, "Trouble-Shooter" Omar Michon has sure had his hands full this week. No less than five main lines and six rural were put out of commission owing to the lines breaking from the weight of sleet. The Chauvin and Viking lines were also out of order with no less than eleven breaks in a two-mile stretch, but the works was "hooked-up" again within a space of some 20 hours. Can't get through? Well, be patient!

We want each boy and girl to call in at The Star office and have the Christmas gift explained. A $5 gold piece will go to one of you two days before Christmas.

velopes. In this way the essential features are impressed upon the minds of the pupils and they are likely to acquire a more systematic mastery of the subject. The methods employed in the teaching of the science subject were satisfactory. When possible, the pupils should be encouraged to perform the experiments—themselves under the guidance of the teacher Mr Bremner appears to be familiar with the content of the various subjects which he teaches and I am confident that he is giving your board good service.

I observed Miss Howard conduct classes in art, algebra, arithmetic, literature, French, Miss Howard's management of her classes was very good; her explanations of the work to be done were clear and to the point. She followed up her explanations with help and directing the pupils in their work. Her writing and figuring on the blackboard is neat. Each lesson showed careful preparation. Miss Howard is somewhat handicapped in the work in French. The grade XI class has not as yet covered all the work required in grade X. It will require a lot of effort on Miss Howard's part to get this class ready for examination.

The attitude of the classes during the time of my visit was satisfactory. The attention was good; the pupils were industrious and the discipline could not have been better.

Accommodations and Equipment

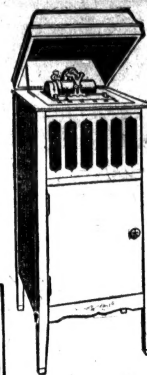

The two high school rooms at present used are satisfactory for the purpose. Should the attendance in grade X and XI increase materially, the room in which these classes now are would be too small for the physical welfare of the children. It appears to me that your board should consider the question of providing increased school accommodation at an early date.

There should be a clock in one of the high school rooms and in the other there should be a small electric bell wired to a push button in the room where the clock is.

Thomas A. Edison

Thomas A. Edison Wants To See An Amberola In YOUR Home This Christmas!

Last year many thousands of families enjoyed an Amberola on Christmas as the result of Mr. Edison's expressed wish to bring music to every home in the land. This Christmas will witness more thousands of Edison's Amberola Phonographs in happy homes on Christmas morning because you again have the opportunity to own an Amberola practically on your own terms! Just think what this means!

EDISON'S NEW DIAMOND AMBEROLA

is the world's greatest phonograph value—perfected in every detail by the inventor of the phonograph! The Amberola has proved its superiority over high-priced "talking machines" and commercial phonographs in numerous public tests! And you can own this wonderful phonograph—you and your family can enjoy the experience music this Christmas right in your home—even though you have felt you could not yet afford a phonograph! Remember, as Mr. Edison's a thoughtful dealer, we are bound to carry out the spirit of his wish—it is up to us to make it possible for you to own an Amberola right away! We are ready and willing to do so. We know the Christmas season is a drain on your resources—at this time you cannot make any big expenditure. Well, you won't have to! You can have an Amberola practically on your own terms! Let us know just how much or how little you can pay now, and what future payments will be most convenient and easy for you—and we will work out a satisfactory arrangement. We insist on only one condition—

Act immediately! Come to our store or write to us at once—every minute is valuable. Otherwise our stock of Amberolas may be exhausted and we may have to disappoint you. If you want an Amberola in your home Christmas morning, call or write today—tomorrow—please!

There's Only One Tractor Backed by a Written Guarantee to Burn Kerosene

MANY are the claims, verbal promises, and near guarantees for the kerosene-burning capabilities of tractors, but there is only one tractor with which goes a fair and square written guarantee that it will burn kerosene—not part of the time under certain conditions, but all the time, under all conditions and at all loads to its full rated power. This tractor is the famous Rumely OilPull.

And the OilPull has used low-grade kerosene for fuel, successfully and economically, ever since the first OilPull was built, way back at the start of the industry. That's the fuel it was designed for and it's built from the ground up to use it.

You have seen for yourself how rugged and substantially built the OilPull is—the dependability and long life that have been proved by years of continuous work under every condition. A tractor can go up against the first OilPull made are still on the job and good for many seasons more.

Remember, streamline bodies and handsome fittings mean nothing in a tractor. You want a tractor for what it has done, not for what it looks like or what it may be able to do.

We are now able to supply the OilPull in sizes to pull from 3 to 10 plows—a size to fit every need and all built on the proved superiority of OilPull design and construction.

tion in the room, where the clock is, and adherence to the time day after day of the time table.

The rest part of the grade X and XI room is used as a science laboratory. It is the only place for accommodation under the present circumstances. What there is in the way of science equipment is exceedingly good but it will fall far from being complete for the task of a science grade. It would be an improvement indeed if the chemistry equipment was not so far away as that for the upper grade, possibly for the purpose.

There is need of a lot of work in the building of a good school. The school board is well equipped with the financial resources.

Extra Charge for Audit 1.50. I was pleased to see the attention given to the audit of the school. The audit of the school is a very important part of the school work. The audit of the school is a very important part of the school work. The audit of the school is a very important part of the school work.

The meeting was then thrown open for discussion and then Mr. May spoke at some length on the claim, that there was a possibility that the subject of increase of school room was liable to be treated too lightly. It was a very good point and was well received in some instances, and he hoped to see everyone, here or there, to this end.

He is opposed to a downtown school as a separate center and claimed that only by having the school room as a separate center under the control of the principal could the best results be obtained.

Mr. May and Mr. May spoke along the same lines regarding building or advanced rooms and it was pointed out by Mr. May however that plans are already drawn for this, and the new board might possibly be able to do something in this matter, although the cost would be around $100,000 to $150,000, which, while prices were so high, might prove prohibitive.

The meeting then adjourned.
